Maude Barlow is the National Chairperson of the Council of Canadians, Canada’s largest public advocacy organization and founder of the Blue Planet Project. Ms. Barlow is the recipient of numerous awards including, the 2005/2006 Lannan Cultural Freedom Fellowship Award and the 2005 Right Livelihood Award (known as the “Alternative Nobel”) for her global justice work. In 2008, she was bestowed with the Citation of Lifetime Achievement Award at the Canadian Environment Awards. She sits on the boards of various international environmental organizations and she is also a best selling author and co-author of 16 books. Ms. Barlow collaborated with French filmmaker, Irina Salina, on FLOW –For Love of Water – presented at the 2008 Sundance Film Festival.

Jane Fonda is best known as an Academy Award-winning actress, writer, political and social activist, former fashion model and fitness guru. She is also known for her advocacy on environmental issues, human rights and the empowerment of women and girls. She is currently a member of the Women and Foreign Policy Advisory Committee of the Council on Foreign Relations and sits on the board of V-Day: Until The Violence Stops, a global effort to stop violence against women. In 1994, Ms. Fonda was named Goodwill Ambassador for the United Nations Population Fund. Presently, Ms. Fonda devotes much of her time to the program she founded in 1995, the Campaign for Adolescent Pregnancy Prevention. At Emory University, she has established the Jane Fonda Center for Adolescent Reproductive health.

Buffy Sainte-Marie is an Academy Award-winning, Canadian, First Nations musician, composer, pioneering visual artist and social activist. She has a Ph.D in Fine Art and holds degrees in Oriental Philosophy and Teaching. In the 1960s, Ms. Sainte-Marie was known as a writer of protest songs and love songs - many of them have been performed by artists including Elvis Presley, Janis Joplin, Roberta Flack and Barbara Streisand and have become huge hits. Her concern for protecting Native American artists and performers has kept her in the forefront of activism in the arts for over forty years. Currently, Ms. Sainte-Marie operates the Nihewan Foundation for Native American Education whose Cradleboard Teaching Project serves children and teachers in 18 US states. She continues to draw huge crowds on the concert circuit.
